

ABOUT eciperformance

ECF Performance was established in 2005 by Eric Cooper-Founder and Chief Designer. The urban luxury activewear line is based in Los Angeles, and the retro inspired collection consist of a unique mix of stylish tracksuits, chic jackets and pants, contoured tops, sporty shorts, and fashionable accessories. The highly crafted collection uses the most advance construction and technical fabrics that are effective in wicking moisture, resisting wind, blocking UV rays, and enhancing mobility.

Eric's impressive background in design, fashion retail, and fitness helped him acquired the idea to start an activewear line. His motivation to establish ECF Performance came after noticing a shortage in fashionable activewear while shopping—especially for men. Putting his fashion and design skills to work, he created a collection that would bridge the fashion gap between active and social lifestyles.

Black/Red Power Suit

The line is made of 3 parts: tracksuits, Elements, and accessories. Each season the tracksuits vary in design, and the common thread between each collection is the signature power stripe. The 'Elements' group consists of coordinates that compliment the tracksuit category including: jackets, pants, shorts, tops, and t-shirts. The fashionable accessories are made up of a unique mix of jewelry, bags, and hats—each designed to coordinate with the activewear.

The current Iconic collection pays homage to the fashion sensibility of 4 American icons—legendary dare-devil, Evel Knievel, edgy and pioneering hip hop artist, LL Cool J, 6-time Olympic medalist, Jackie Joyner-Kersee, and 70's TV superheroine, and warrior princess of the Amazons, Wonder Woman. These idols were know for captivating fans with their style and power—both of which greatly influenced Eric during the initial conception of the collection. The fitted contours and designs of the line are largely inspired by the vintage Stingray Corvette. The price-point of the line range between $70-$600, and the size range includes S-XL for men, and XS-L for women.

Produced in Los Angeles, ECF PERFORMANCE is committed to creating functionally stylish, uniquely versatile, and powerfully sexy activewear that targets an active and social customer between 20-60.

THE DESIGNER

Eric Cooper, founder and Chief designer of ECF PERORMANCE, studied fashion design at therenowned Cass Technical High School in Detroit and Ray College of Design in Chicago. Eric's experience in fashion landed him several positions with leading designers including Charles Jourdan, Escada, and Ralph Lauren before going out on his own.

Specializing in men's and women's apparel and accessories, Eric's expertise in sales management garnered him many awards before accepting the coveted senior sales position with Ralph Lauren.

While working in fashion, he developed an interest in health and fitness and studied for a certification in fitness training. Upon receiving his certification, he began working as a trainer part-time while maintaining his full-time fashion career. During his tenure as a fitness trainer, he has worked for some of the industry's most notable clubs: the Evanston Athletic Club, Lincoln Park Athletic Club, the Athletic Club at the Illinois Center, and the Workout Warehouse in Los Angeles.

After a long and rewarding career in fashion retail, Eric left the world of glitz and glamour to concentrate on a thriving fitness business. He established ERIC COOPER FITNESS and developed a six-week functional training program called E-FORM WORKOUT. During this period, Eric reconceived his image. While looking for workout attire, he became disenchanted with the lack of variety he found in stores. This motivated him to create his own activewear collection, ECF PERFORMANCE.

While designing the line, Eric's goal was to create a collection reflecting urban luxury appeal that would bridge the fashion gap between active to social lifestyles. In addition, the collection needed to have a timeless retro look. So Eric modernized body conscious silhouettes from the 70's and 80's and created an iconic mix of looks including the 'Power Suit'—the collection's signature eighties styled track-suit, as well as fitted T's, sexy bottoms, chic jackets, and coordinating accessories.
